

YOURS, MINE, AND OURS?

Do you drive a company car? Work on a computer? Maintain equipment? Use a company credit card or expense account? Most people don't give company assets a second thought until they are lost, stolen or broken. Employees must understand that ethical behavior is demonstrated not only in how they act toward others but also in how they treat company property. The key to success is to understand who owns what and what boundaries exist for its use.

Ethics is online continuing education helping you and your employees understand ethics, which helps to build your company's reputation.
